Distinctive Note to C.N.R.'s New Car

Most Efficient on Continent; Painted Grey, With Red Motif

MONTREAL, June 24.—Having developed the most efficient railway overhead ice refrigerator car in service on the North American continent, the Canadian National Railways today went a step further in introducing an entirely new color scheme for this type of equipment which includes a brine resistant and heat repellent paint. Instead of the conventional box car red, these 50-ton capacity overhead ice refrigerator cars will have the sides, ends and roof finished in gray, with lettering, maple leaf monogram and slogan, trucks and underframe in contrasting red. Refrigerator cars are in urgent demand to handle perishable war traffic and this new distinctive Canadian National coloring will readily identify these cars in the System's yards and thereby enable operating employees to quickly spot these units for preferred handling.

In addition to the operating benefit and the conservation of ice, this brine resisting and heat repellent paint will prevent corrosion and add to the life of the car and provide for more efficient refrigeration during extreme hot weather. To date, 200 of these latest type cars are in service on the National Railways; another 100 are now being built and a further 200 have just been ordered, construction work being done at the railway's Transcona Shop, Winnipeg. Recently, one of these reefers carried a world's tonnage record by transporting 92,400 pounds of frozen hog livers in a single shipment over the transcontinental route of the C.N.R.

Interior dimensions of these reefers are: Length, 40 feet; height, 10 feet, 1 inch; width, 8 feet, 6 inches. Each car is equipped with eight overhead ice bunkers to maintain even car temperatures.

Archbishop of Kootenay Inducts Salmon Arm Cleric

Rev. A. B. Craig Also Assumes Duties As Vicar of Canoe and Tappen Areas

SALMON ARM, B.C., June 28.—Most Rev. W. E. Adams, Archbishop of Kootenay, was in charge of the service on Sunday morning, June 20, when he inducted the new vicar, Rev. A. B. Craig, to the parish of St. John's Anglican Church at Salmon Arm, Canoe and Tappen.

Rev. R. N. Savary acted as chaplain and carried the staff. The two church wardens took part in the professional, which added to the colorful ceremony.

Following the regular oath of office taken by the new vicar, the Archbishop expressed pleasure in knowing that the Salmon Arm church and parish now had its own clergyman. He emphasized the place of the church as a house of worship, and the clergyman to interpret the mind of God. He urged the congregation to co-operate with the new vicar, and said he was satisfied that Mr. Craig would be a great help to them, and would accomplish much in the days to come.

On Monday evening, following the induction, St. John's Hall was well filled by members of St. John's Church and First United Church, to welcome Rev. A. B. Craig to Salmon Arm. Mr. Craig also expressed appreciation to Rev. M. E. West, who had generously given of his time in carrying on the work for the past eight months, when the church was without a resident vicar. Following an address from the parishioners, read by W. H. Grant, people's warden, Mr. Babcock, vicar's warden, presented Mr. Craig with a gift to be used as he thought best.

On behalf of the United Church, to which Mr. West had given help, owing to the retirement of Rev.

V. H. Sansum, through illness, D. H. Jamieson presented Mr. West with a small token of appreciation. Mr. West thanked them for their kind thoughts, and expressed his willingness to assist with the work of the church at all times; and said his services were always available.

Gifts were also presented to Mrs. Jones, organist, for morning services, and Mrs. Turner, evening organist. Miss R. Turner was praised for her efficient work with the children's choir.

Track and Field Meet

With fair weather prevailing after the heavy rains of the previous day, the annual Track and Field Meet for the Salmon Arm Municipal Schools was held last Thursday, June 24, on Baker's Field, North Canoe.

Transportation problems were responsible for three of the schools, Gleneden, Broadview and Mount Ida, being unable to attend. The four remaining schools, North Canoe, South Canoe, Larch Hill and Salmon Arm West, were well represented, and in spite of a slight shower the events were run off in good time.

The Board of Trustees generously donated 10 gallons of ice cream and the teachers provided lemonade. The children took their own lunches.

A total of 48 events of various kinds were run off with two boys' and girls' softball games in the evening.

Following the sports, A. M. Martin, on behalf of the trustees, presented the Municipal School Board Cup to the North Canoe school, whose athletes

The Valley Must Be Alert

PREMIER JOHN HART'S important announcement in Vancouver last week on proposed road construction in northern British Columbia enabled the ordinary people of this province to glean some slight insight into the quietly conducted negotiations over northern communication routes.

What is now known is only fragmentary and the full story in all probability will remain untold until after the war. From what was announced by the Premier it is evident that British Columbia is "on its own" so far as constructing links in either highway or rail facilities between the settled portions of the province and the vast territory stretching from the Prince Rupert-Jasper C.N.R. railway line is concerned.

Any hopes the government entertained of securing assistance in building a railway to Alaska have evidently had to be abandoned. In this connection Premier Hart was quoted in an issue of the Vancouver Daily Province:

"The Premier had thought the war department of the United States could have been persuaded to build a railway from Prince George to the Yukon boundary, in which case the British Columbia government was willing to finish the P.G.E. from Quesnel to Prince George. But he had now no hope that a railway program would be carried through. It became necessary, therefore, for the province to link its highway system with the new Alaska highway."

"It will be too late to wait until after the war to make this connection. By that time routes of travel will be set. There will be enormous tourist traffic to Alaska and the Yukon immediately after the war because the European routes will still be disrupted."

This glimpse of what has been transpiring for many months past is reassuring in one respect at least—it is definitely shown that our government authorities have been keenly alive to British Columbia's position. That success in one direction has not too fully attended the efforts made cannot be laid down to negligence, but most likely to causes having their origin in the stress of war. In any event, the Premier has now decided that his government will embark on an ambitious program of connecting our northern roads with the new highway. Having failed to accomplish the objective by one means, the government is now determined on another means.

The entire settled areas of British Columbia—principally that portion south of the main line railways—stand to derive immense benefit from a farsighted and courageous policy by the government.

There is a distinct danger, however, that the Interior will not share in the benefit to be derived to the extent that it should. Already the highways leading to the Lower Mainland area are better constructed and far better publicized than is No. 5 highway through this valley. We are sure that the provincial authorities will have in mind the necessity of such road improvements through the Interior as will make travel comparatively as easy and as pleasant as from the Coast route.

The Okanagan should not quietly go about its day to day business while great schemes of much importance are going forward elsewhere. It is a time for alertness and action by individuals and valley organizations.

Kelowna's Japanese—Ho Hum!

THERE MAY be just the slightest tinge of malice—for which we ask forgiveness—in our reaction to Kelowna's continuing upheaval over the so-called "Pearl Harbor" Japanese.

Some weeks ago in these columns we ventured the mild as milk hope that this part of the Okanagan at least had heard the last, for the duration, of its so-called Japanese problem. The comment was only by way of pointing out that here after a period of stress a formula had been worked out mutually satisfactory to all parties concerned, growers, city folk, and municipal and other bodies.

Much to our surprise our contemporary, the Kelowna Courier, took quite violent exception to this statement or, rather, this expressed hope. Even the solemn Vancouver Sun ventured the comment that we had erred on the side of being "too hopeful."

Now the Courier's history in the Japanese question has been unique, in that it has taken a very forward part in making sure that the Okanagan remains absolutely pure white regardless of the crying needs of the moment for labor and the obvious fact that it was unsatisfactory to have perfectly healthy Japanese cooped up in camps eating their heads off when they might well have been helping to produce that food. On the point that this valley cannot be saddled forever with more Japanese than are ordinarily domiciled here there was not the slightest dispute.

Much to our surprise, therefore, three weeks ago the Courier joined with us in this statement: "The success can only be attributed to the consolidation of opinion and the co-operation of fruit growers, the vegetable growers, and the townspeople, who joined forces to present a united front. Last week's conference, it is hoped, wrote final to the local problem. The conclusion of this local Japanese war will be greeted with relief by all concerned."

Events of the past week, as reported in the Coast press, do not give the impression that the "local Japanese war" can be considered over. Evidently the Courier forgot to consult the Japanese themselves. Even Japanese have feelings and, apparently, an uncomfortable way of showing them.

Some People Still Asleep

INCREDIBLE as it may seem, some people in this district are exhibiting an amazing ignorance or indifference to the seriousness of the food situation in all parts of North America.

Some facts were given in a recent issue of The Vernon News showing the alarming state that agriculture in the Interior of British Columbia is in at the present time. From every agricultural expert in this area have come warnings that a large portion of our prospective harvests may not be gathered in this autumn.

It may be necessary to sacrifice foundation stock of beef and dairy animals, stock which ordinarily would produce immense revenue in the strong markets expected after the cessation of hostilities. Dairy animals in this district and

Summer Song

Waves run up the glittering sands,
Trees whisper as of yore,
Boats swing at the old wharf's side,
The sun glows warm on the shore.
My heart, my heart is heavy today;
They are over the hills and far away.

Summer sings in the high beech trees,
Oracles flame in the northern sky;
Busy robins patrol the lawns
Where the shadow patterns lie.
My heart, my heart is heavy today;
They are over the hills and far away.

Children splash in the shallow pools,
Build their castles in the sand.
Sweet, sweet sings the meadow lark,
White caps toss foam to the land.
My heart, my heart is heavy today;
They are over the hills and far away.

Dear children that used to be,
Warriors of land, sea, and air,
Light of our eyes, song of our lips,
Gone with you is our summer fair.
May God keep you safe today
Who are over the hills and far away.

beef animals in the Nicola and Main Line areas include some of the finest in Canada. Ordinarily, these areas would be called upon to fill large and profitable orders from less favored regions. But now there is a danger—a real danger—that owners will not be able to carry over this foundation stock because of shortages.

This situation has been foreseen. For at least a year the manpower problem in Canada has been daily growing more acute. As more and more men and women were drawn off for the armed forces and auxiliary services and for essential industry, the ranks of workers that ordinarily would be relied on to harvest and process the crops have been thinner and thinner.

Last year shortages were common and serious. Today they are everywhere and much more serious.

The problem that was created was bound to come, and it can never be successfully argued that the solution would have been "proper" organization of manpower resources, though such organizations as National Selective Service have admittedly been a year late at least in getting under way.

This condition is almost identical in every country at war today. But there is a deeper significance in Canada and the United States. These two countries have undertaken to provide a large proportion of the Allied World's food, and are in danger of falling down on the job unless the seriousness is more generally recognized.

In this district organizations have been set up to assist in solving the problem by local means, for help from the outside is almost nonexistent—help that is on any scale large enough to permit of real organization.

With the food production situation so serious as to amount to a real emergency—and if unsolved—a calamity, it is hardly understandable to receive reports of the lack of co-operation extended by many of the smaller orchardists, ranchers, and general farmers.

For the past month, in this district, there has been almost a surplus of labor, and if a little more co-operation had been extended our problem here would be a longer way towards being solved. The local committee and other individuals and organizations have received offers from scores of prairie residents—school teachers, students, and the like—who would have been glad of the opportunity to spend three months or more in the valley helping with harvesting if only they earned sufficient money to meet their expenses.

In far too many instances the answers of landowners were so unsatisfactory that these people could not be brought to the district. No help wanted just at the moment; no accommodation; ready, too much trouble to board workers—and others equally silly in the face of an emergency.

The problem of labor is a many-sided one and to solve it everyone must be prepared to make some sacrifices, great or small according to circumstance.

Civic Parks An Asset

ON SEVERAL occasions in the past, remarks have been made in these columns on the work being done jointly by the City Council and by the Rotary Club towards beautifying Polson Park.

Too many citizens are not aware of just what an asset Vernon has in this lovely spot, now perhaps at its glorious best. A program carried out by the two bodies named above has gone far towards enhancing the natural setting. The formal gardens at the main entrance, the smooth lawns at the High School, and the largely untouched beauty of the other portions are blended into an entirely pleasing picture.

Elaborate projects for the park, flower beds and the like, are impossible of accomplishment at present on a great scale. But each year sees definite improvements made by civic workmen with the limited funds available.

Vernon possesses more parks than ordinarily thought, at least four—Polson, Pioneer, the Cenotaph, and the cricket field. These are scattered so that in the expected growth of this community all sections should be well represented.

ARGENTINE "BEEF"

From the VERNON NEWS FILES

Ten Years Ago—Thursday, July 6, 1933

Bulmans Limited, Vernon, B.C., was the name which Dave McNair saw on the first package that met his eye on a dock in Scotland. It was a package containing canned apples. It made him feel right at home, he said. Mr. McNair was telling the Rotarians of Vernon his impressions and experiences during a recent hurried business visit to the Old Country.

During the last week someone pried up the stop-logs at Kalamalka Lake, placed there to stop the flow of water into the creek. This was discovered by Waterworks Foreman Grierson when he went to check the storage measurements. How long the flow-off had been going on it is difficult to ascertain, but it was probably for only a brief period. He twice found it necessary to replace the logs, however.

Miss Marjorie Wakefield and Miss Margot Gillespie, pupils of the Vernon Central School, have both won prizes in the provincial wide essay competition on "Our Forests, and Why We Should Protect Them from Fire." "Vernon has one of the best motor tourist camps in the northwest," declared Walter Thurber, of Oakland, Cal., who spent a few days in Vernon this week on a motor tour of the west. "The children of this city are a credit to Vernon," declared Alderman Galbraith at the council meeting on Tuesday night during a discussion relating to the school nurse.

Thirty Years Ago—Thursday, July 3, 1913

A deposit of 23,000 young trout of the "cut-throat" variety was made last Thursday in Kalamalka Lake from the hatchery at Tappan. These trout, which are of the silver variety take their name from a crimson streak under their gills. The fry were turned loose in excellent condition, but it was observed that no sooner were they in the water than they were attacked by young squaw fish who gobbled many of them up in quick order. Work is progressing rapidly on the foundation of the fine new building which the Royal Bank is putting up on the northeastern corner of Barnard Avenue and Seventh Street.

Forty Years Ago—Thursday, July 2, 1903

The Rev. Clarence McKinnon, of Sydney, Cape Breton, whose name is known to all who have followed the workings of the Lord's Day Alliance, gave an address in Vernon last week, and as a result a branch of the alliance was formed here, with the following officers: President, Rev. R. W. Crow; Secretary, William Skinner; Treasurer, S. P. French, Jr.; Executive, James Stodders, W. O. Pound, S. A. Muir and the clergymen of the city. Canadian ties are becoming a menace in this city. The council should take definite steps to eradicate them. A good scythe and a lot of salt are not bad remedies. A new group of claims adjoining the Monashee mine has been bonded by eastern capitalists.

Fifty Years Ago—Thursday, July 6, 1893

The Okanagan is always growing in public favor as a health resort, and every few days, invalids are being brought here from the Coast and elsewhere for change of air, with the hope of gaining strength that medical treatment could not give in localities less favorably situated. "We had a call on Tuesday from J. C. Drewery, representing the 'Toronto Globe'." He has made an extended tour of the Northwest Territories and his graphic sketches of the districts visited form the leading feature of the Globe's illustrated Saturday edition. The ladies of Vernon and district have done themselves proud in their contribution to Princess May's wedding present. As a result they have sent in $45 embracing contributions from 160 ladies.

The Old Home Town

By Pte. Chris C. Orcharde

It is written that in our journey through life we at some time return to the land of our birth. This truism has proved itself in my case, for after years of globe-trotting I find myself back again in the land of my childhood.

A trainload of green and sallow fellow rookies came with me last week for moral support, so we mutually supported one another as our train dropped anchor at Vernon in a pouring rain. This typical Vancouver weather made us leap and frolic with joy as we scrambled out half asleep and raised grimy faces to the skies the more to absorb the fat, luscious drops as they splashed from the sky. They might get their share of those heavenly caresses, and wrenching open our shirts to further enjoy the invigorating freshness trickling down our torsos.

Thus it was that with streaming faces, but exuberant, gladness hearts we set foot down the middle of the dear old drag once more, searching the store-fronts for long forgotten nothings as we walked, while splashing through all available puddles with the gay abandon of the coast dweller, and arriving finally at our new home for a month, where some very solidly soldiers have since extended a rigorous welcome.

However today is Sunday; a late June sun is dipping into the beyond, and brilliant white clouds are spreading tenuous wings over the warm green hills and the drowsy town. Curiously guides me to where a quiet road crosses a creek which flows back of a corner lot and on down among some trees. A little boy once lived here twenty-five years ago. But the house that he knew is gone, and in its place is a modern stucco apartment block, while other house roofs peep through the foliage behind, where used to be a field where mushrooms grow, right down to the stream.

The memory is not dimmed, however, despite the passage of the years. I recall a child swinging on a forbidden iron gate that leads into a yard. Only the yard and old iron gate are there any more, and the present yard is overgrown with grass.

Come too is the old wagon that was backed in over yonder, and which was the delight of all the little boys in the neighborhood. And what of the summer house that once stood by the creek under the tall cottonwoods? That summer house where I fun to this day it was a fairy I saw gliding by the window one sleepy afternoon, with her mistle wings, and tiny feet trailing behind. Tangled bushes mark the place, but those funny spraddle-legged daddly-long-legs are still there, darting aimlessly on the shadowy stream, forever going nowhere, yet just as fascinating after all the years.

Now there comes to mind the epic day of brigandage when we raided an absent neighbor's garden and threw his tomatoes all over his front door till it was plastered with running red juice and seeds.

Dirty urchins are playing follow the leader through the muddy culvert which passes under the road to scramble out at the other end covered with mud and "creaky" odors.

I look up to where was a window, in the old house through which a child in a tiny cot is sleepily gazing up at great masses of dark clouds seething across a golden afternoon. It floats in a wonder world of fancies and little people. And beyond that must be of course the mysterious land of Santa Claus, and God and the angels.

The curtain of closing day is drawing in, and the stage before me is deserted for the actors have long since gone, and I turn away and walk slowly up an avenue of shady trees feeling somehow that I don't belong there any more, for it has changed and now a world of army tents and bugle calls, parade grounds and legions of marching men.

Yet no fire of action nor vivid lure of foreign soil will ever erase the nostalgic memories of these quiet shady streets, of the vivid blue valley lakes that mirror the changing skies, nor of the sage amells that drift from the changelings hills, nor the and soft, murmur of the night winds in the mountain pines. These things will remain with me always, as clearly and vividly as those few precious moments of recaptured childhood over at the old corner lot in the town of my birth.

Better Equipment at Less Cost

Large sums of money and substantial quantities of vital materials are being saved as a result of Canadian initiative and industry applied in the making of munitions. In parliament last week Lloyd Chevrier, now parliamentary assistant to the Minister of Munitions and Supply, outlined some noteworthy achievements. Mr. Chevrier reported that costs of production had been reduced from:

$5.05 to 65 cents on 110 fine;
$15.50 to $10 on 37 mm gun barrels;
$120.40 to $80 on 2-inch mortars;
$345.05 to $230 on 3-inch mortars;
$400.53 to $183.40 on 40 mm gun barrels;
$1,733 to $376 on machining 3.7 AA gun barrels;
$1,050 to $500 on forging 3.7 AA gun barrels;
$3,025 to $2,000 on universal carriers.

And as a result of new designing these typical savings of strategic materials and labor were made:
12 million pounds of steel;
10 million pounds of aluminum;
40,000 pounds of brass and 810,000 manhours on 25-pounder shells.

3,635 freight cars, 22 millions of nails and lumber, and one million manhours in shipping and packing of trucks.

100,000 pounds of welding rod, $50,000 worth of oxygen and acetylene and 815,000 manhours on catch for Bren gun magazines.

Spies Look Like Us Only More So

Not all soldiers had a chance to see the Army Show, which is a pity. But most people in uniform not only can but must go to one free movie which is getting about these days.

That is "Next of Kin," which was made in England at army, navy and air force request to show just why it is so necessary for people to keep their mouths shut about military matters.

It does not say so. But the story of the film, I think, was built around what happened to the Canadians at Dieppe. For it tells of how the enemy got the tip-off of a limited British attack on the French coast; and how he used that information with tragic consequences to our own men, even though they did do the job ordered.

Unlike most others done under official order for war purposes, this movie rates with the best of the commercial films in human interest. It shows in particular how the enemy intelligence service has a whole network for gathering information, and how often the most innocent-seeming and unimportant detail is the vital missing link for which the enemy has been searching to complete his chain of action against our own "next of kin."

What the film tries to get over to all who see it is that withholding information from the enemy is as necessary in war as are tanks, guns or planes. And what it does succeed in doing is in showing that the talkative person—completely patriotic and innocent in intention—is all unknowingly a most important feeder for the professional enemy agents.

There is one bit in the picture which struck me as most true to life. Somebody would give away information and then laugh and say, "I shouldn't do that, of course. Maybe you are a German spy."

The trouble with all of us, I suppose, is that we just can't out of our heads the idea that German spies ought to talk with a marked German accent, break into the goosetep every now and then, and look as German as Hindenburg or Goering. Yet the fact is that the great mass of the Germans look enough like us to be completely lost in any crowd. And many of them talk, not just correct English, but with local idiom and accents which would make it almost impossible to suspect them of foreign origin. Moreover, many spies are natives of the country in which they work.

"Are You From Tronta?"

I shall never forget the shock I got back in 1916 when I ran to see the first batch of German prisoners coming out of the front lines near Ypres. For months I had squinted at distant German heads through field glasses. But this was the first close-up of our enemy for me, and field battery pals. Then came the anti-climax when the first German came in, perfect flat Canadian English. "Are any of you from Tronta?" And he said it "Tronta," too. Then he told us that he used to work for the Bell Telephone Company before the war and hoped to go back there later.

After that it was never so hard for me to realize that if the Germans had spies working anywhere in our country we would never catch them by looking for people who looked like spies. They would look and talk like native sons, or daughters.

Sure Short-Cut to World War III

In Toronto the other night Canada launched a new national movement for friendship with the Soviet Union. The Prime Minister himself was chairman. The speakers included the Soviet Minister in Canada and Mr. Joseph P. Davies, central figure in the now famous "Mission to Moscow."

Most Canadians know what happened at that vast meeting for they read the speeches in the papers or heard them over the continental radio networks. But what most Canadians do not know is that at the same time in this war were taking steps to help open a new era of good will another meeting was taking place also in Canada. This one was held in Winnipeg by an organization calling itself "The Ukrainian Canadian Committee." The chief aim of this body (which happily represents but one fraction of Ukrainians in Canada) is to work for a purpose which, if prolonged, would, with absolute certainty, result in another world war. And the toleration of the working of this body in Canada, with official permission, would do much more than make impossible that friendship about which Mr. King and the others talked at Maple Leaf Gardens.

For the Ukrainian Canadian Committee sets forth one of its own objects in its own official handbook as follows:

"To influence the government and citizens of Canada and the Empire to speak on behalf of the Ukrainian nation in Europe to achieve state independence, and within the framework of the Canadian and British constitution to give the Ukrainian nation the utmost moral and material help in achieving its liberation from foreign occupation."

To Be Separate From Soviet

A study of the actions, expressions and aims of some publications of this body makes it clear that what they want is not so much liberation from the Nazi army of invaders, as separation from the Soviet Union.

To understand this development Canadians must remember certain background facts. Ukrainians before this war included not only Soviet Ukraine, but also parts of Rumania, Czechoslovakia and Poland. Ukrainian-born and Ukrainian-descended Canadian residents were the fourth largest racial group in Canada. They were roughly aligned into two broad divisions: The loyalist majority, which was proud of the cultural, social and political progress of the Soviet Ukraine and which had no desire to see a continuation of the Ukrainian on the rest of the Soviet Union; and the separatist minority which was for formation of a new Ukrainian separate state, incorporating parts of the Soviet, Poland, Czechoslovakia and Rumania.

Within the Rumanian bloc, which we might call the Satisfied-in-the-Soviet group, there was a small core of native Canadiana, Ukrainians—that is active associates of the Bloc.

But within the other broad class there was much more than a small core of out-and-out fascists. In both groups it was true that the great majority were ordinary well-intentioned people, neither fascist nor communist in ideology.

But where Canada made a tragic and double-barrelled blunder—what can now be too soon corrected—was in permitting the whole loyalist majority for the actions of a small Communist party core.

When the Communist party was outlawed in June 1940, the police seized the Ukrainian labor bloc. The custodian of "enemy" property sold these for a fraction of their value. Sometimes these were actually sold to the most virulent pro-fascist groups in the separatist bloc.

Three Generations in Men's Furnishings

Founded in 1907, the well-known firm of W. D. MacKenzie & Son have the largest exclusive men's furnishing business in the Interior.

FEW BUSINESS HOUSES in British Columbia have survived the hazards of depressions and war to have been successfully operated by three generations of the same family. W. D. MacKenzie & Son is one of these firms.

Founded in 1907 by the late W. G. MacKenzie it was originally known as Logie & MacKenzie and the firm's doors opened for business just a few doors west of where they are now located, in the premises now occupied by McKenzie, White & Dunsmuir.

The late William Gregor MacKenzie had come to Vernon with his family from Selkirk, Ontario. He was born in Tortsoy, Banff, Scotland, and at the tender age of 11 years he became apprenticed to the tailoring trade. At the age of 19 he decided to come to Canada. His first position was at Toronto and he later moved to Selkirk, Ont. to manage a tailoring business there. In 1893 he moved to Milton, Ont. then to Guelph and in 1907 he came to Vernon where he continued in business until his death on February 3rd, 1934.

He was an ardent churchman, having served as Superintendent of the Presbyterian Sunday School, and when the United Church was formed he took a strong stand on continuing Presbyterianism. He was a Liberal in political faith all his life and he was a leader in the Master Tailor's Association. Throughout his life in Vernon he showed a marked interest in civic affairs; he was connected with the Board of Trade and the Retail Merchants Assn. which he helped found. He was for several years a Police Commissioner and in 1914 an Alderman.

In 1910 he bought out Mr. Logie's interest and took his son the late W. D. MacKenzie into the firm with him, and the firm name then became W. G. MacKenzie & Son.

Shortly after his death, due to a rapidly increasing business, it became necessary for the firm to move to its present premises just a few doors east of their old location, and in the Spring of 1940 they purchased the building which then became known as the MacKenzie Block.

On February 1st of this year the founder's son, W. D. MacKenzie passed away quite suddenly at his home on Whetham Street as a result of a heart attack. He had been a great outdoor man, being an ardent angler, curler, golfer and hunter, and in his younger days he had engaged in the more strenuous sports of baseball and lacrosse and at one time had been a player on the local ball club. He was survived by his wife and three children, William Arthur, Leonard Earl and Muriel Kathleen.

William Arthur, better known as 'Bill' to his many friends continues to carry on his father's business while Earl, the younger brother, had joined up prior to his father's death with the R.C.A.F. and is now stationed in Eastern Canada. On his return after the war is over he will be an equal partner with his brother in the business. After her father's death, Muriel Kathleen MacKenzie, who was previously employed with the Royal Bank of Canada, joined the firm as their accountant.

Bill MacKenzie, the present proprietor and grandson of the founder had joined up with the R.M.R.'s shortly after the outbreak of war but for health reasons was discharged about three months later.

THE FIRMS ADVERTISED IN THIS SERIES OF ADVERTISEMENTS HAVE PLAYED THEIR PART IN DEVELOPING COMMERCIAL ACTIVITY IN VERNON & DISTRICT

W. D. MacKenzie & Son Bernard Ave. store, one of the largest exclusive men's furnishings establishments in the Interior.

Among the many well-known brands that the firm handles are Progress, Fashion Craft and Gordon Campbell's Suits and Top-Coats; Tooke and Arrow Shirts, Ties, Pyjamas, etc. Scott McHale and Invictus Shoes; Harvey Woods & Stanfield Underwear. Stetson & Crear Hats, GWG and Gaults Men's Work Clothes; Jantzen Knitted Wear and Swim Suits.

On being asked for the fundamental reason of the firm's success, this reporter was told by young 'Bill' that he believed it was due to the fact that they had always maintained quality merchandise which was sold at a very reasonable profit depending upon a large volume of business to carry the general overhead.

He also said that through his father's foresighted policy they had at the present time one of the largest stocks of men's furnishings in the Interior of British Columbia, and that while they were short on a few lines, which no one in Western Canada should get, on the whole they had a well balanced line of merchandise and that they were doing everything they could to maintain it.

Haymaking Under Way on Farms in Enderby District

Working Long Shifts to Combat Labor Shortage; Some Hay Baled on Field

ENDERBY, B.C., June 28.—Three-quarters of Enderby farmers are now either cutting or bringing in their first crop of hay. The weather man has been more favorable to district farmers the past week, following a very heavy rain last Wednesday all day. Most ranchers are very gratified as farm after farm begins cutting hay to find their crops is not nearly as thin as they feared earlier in the season.

With a shortage of help this year, nearly all the farmers are working as long a shift as they possibly can in order to get the hay into the barns before more rains come. Even if satisfactory weather holds and there is a plentiful crop of hay this year, most of the farmers predict it will be scarce and the price high. Many of the farmers have sold their entire crop, to be baled right on the field, which will undoubtedly result in a considerable quantity of the individual selling.

District farmers who have not gone into the hay business on a large scale were relieved at the heavy rainfall on their land on Wednesday, however, as the grain and pea crops were in great need of moisture. Farmers have a much larger acreage in peas this year than ever before, and without the rain the loss in harvesting would be considerable.

Mrs. J. Montfort, of Sugar Lake, accompanied by her small daughter, was a visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Parkinson on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Enoch of Deep Creek accompanied by two children paid a visit at the home of Mrs. Enoch's parents, Rev. and Mrs. J. L. King, on Saturday.

Butter Production Up

Enderby Creamery, under the management of William Cameron, is running a full shift this summer. Almost 100 pounds of butter are being produced over last year's output. The creamery is producing on an average of 9000 pounds of butter per week this year and last week this was up to 10,000 pounds. More than ever, district farmers shipping to the local creamery. All the cream shippers are pleased with the excellent prices that are being paid for butter fat this year, and a considerable number have raised the numbers of their herds. Milking machines have been added to the district farms, which is greatly helping the shortage of farm labor.

During the many years when Enderby had no pay-roll, the creamery made it possible for district farmers to have some income, even though in many cases it was small, and now that pay-roll has increased until creamery in one of the main "stand-bys" of the district.

Water High in Mabel Lake Area

H. Blunt returned to his home in Enderby on Saturday, after spending a week or so prospecting in some of the higher mountains in the Mabel Lake district. Mr. Blunt reports that on his trip this time up the Cottonwood, the water was higher than it has been for quite some years, and coming down the mountain carrying large trees and boulders with it. Heavy rains in the Mabel Lake district and also in the higher mountains had melted a considerable quantity of snow during the past week, causing this sudden rush of water.

The water level in the lake itself has also raised considerably during the past week, so that campers to Dolly Varden Beach have not been able to enjoy the large expanse of sand that will be lowered once the water level lowers.

Salmon Arm Pioneering in Raising Lemons

SALMON ARM, B.C., June 28.—Mrs. Hannah Hatala, of the White Lake district, near Salmon Arm, is the proud possessor of a fine lemon tree. She is a lover of flowers, which she grows most successfully. Her lemon tree, which is three years old, has produced fruit for the past two seasons. Last year it bore 11 small lemons, but this year, one large lemon weighing a pound was the entire crop.

The single citrus fruit was of good quality, and made an excellent lemon pie, according to the owner, who polkized the lemons.

Unique Project at Falkland Nets $72 For the Red Cross

Empire Day "Kitchen" Operated by Ladies Successful Venture

FALKLAND, B.C., June 26.—Mervyn Currie, secretary-treasurer of the Falkland and District Community Association reports that the net proceeds of the "Kitchen" which was operated by the ladies' committee on Victoria Day during the stamped celebration totalled nearly $72. Following the society's annual custom, these proceeds are being turned in full to the Canadian Red Cross.

At its regular meeting last week, the Falkland unit of the Red Cross mapped out work plans for the summer months, then agreed to dispense with formal business meetings during the hot weeks of the holiday season. A portion of the last meeting was devoted to quilting.

School's out! Among those at Falkland, securing promotion were Kathleen Miller and Ida Mae Ames. For them, next fall brings the decision to seek or to reject Grade XI instruction in another school. Ida Mae wants an opportunity to become a nurse; Kathleen leans toward business training but she is still uncertain about the future. The school council sponsored a fine concert and dance Friday night.

Up in Paxton Valley, the so-called "wacker sex" was the talk of the town. Miss Juliette Frazer has school teaching as a vocation but her other activities are many varied. As an accomplished equestrienne she has plenty of opportunity to find her horse in the hills but, on Monday last week, adventure came to her. A two-year-old bear strolled too near the Frazer home and, though the shot was from a difficult angle, Julie made the kill.

Mrs. Frazer, whose eyes twinkle constantly, says: "Don't forget that I organized and directed the campaign."

Rev. Nelson A. Harkness, provincial secretary for the British and Foreign Bible Society, while returning to Vancouver from a tour of the Kootenays, called on Falkland friends on Friday. Mr. Harkness seemed very optimistic because of the response to date towards the work of the society but added: "We are really glad of the increased interest, for there is increased demand." He reports that the government has asked for 100,000 more scriptures than the society had expected.

Finding homemaking a difficult task in conjunction with her professional duties as principal of the Falkland school, Mrs. J. M. Clegg last week sold her home furnished to S. B. Swift. Meanwhile, she has purchased a much smaller house from Mrs. Jean Bials and has removed it to the Parker property, where she will reside.

Grandmother Keeps Farm Going

The aid of three professional sons, a dentist, a veterinarian and an accountant, during their evenings and holidays, make it possible for Mrs. J. L. Isley, 72, Niagara Falls, Ont., to run a 28-acre fruit farm and market garden. Even granddaughter Carol May Maidens, four, lends a hand.

A Friendly Chat

By Cousin Rosemary

Speaking to the National Council of Women of Canada in the Royal York Hotel, Hon. J. L. Isley, minister of finance, related the wartime budget of the average housewife to the budget of the country as a whole, and appealed to Canadians to lend as much as possible and spend as little as possible. If every woman would work out a budget for herself and her family in which the amount spent on non-essentials would be cut to a minimum, it would help reduce the danger of upward pressure on the price ceiling, Mr. Isley said.

Appealing to the women to help in this most costly of all wars, he asked that women establish a social code which frowns on waste and unnecessary spending, and secondly that they help in the problem of conservation of Victory Bonds and War Savings Certificates. "For six weeks every year," he said, "Canadians are asked to buy Victory Bonds and during the rest of the year War Savings Stamps and Certificates. Women have responded wholeheartedly to these appeals. The many novel and ingenious methods used by women in the sale of Stamps and Certificates have been a source of inspiration to others, and I would like to urge that we do not relax our efforts in any of these fields. There is a limit to the amount of money we can raise by taxation. We wish to hold back bank borrowings to a minimum. The only alternative is to borrow from the Canadian people themselves."

Only Redeem If Short of Money

Canadians have bought more than $7,000,000 War Savings Certificates in the last 12 months, Mr. Isley stated. This, he said, represents a considerable saving in small amounts, the small amounts that constitute the most dangerous element of spending. Of that $7,000,000, however, he said, over $24,000,000 have been redeemed. He said that Canadians hold their purchases of bonds and certificates at least for the duration, he stated that bonds and certificates are sold without restriction as to redemption.

Money Making Schemes Evolved by Children

Fertile Brains of Junior Red Cross Turn Every Opportunity to Advantage.

Hats off to the Junior Red Cross members of the Vernon Elementary School! For original ideas, for hard work and for persistent effort, they can show their seniors a few points. During April and May these young folks raised $159.56 for their Junior Red Cross activities. While the grown-ups consider this an outstanding achievement, the children are a bit disappointed. They have been averaging $100 per month all through the school year.

One of their original ideas was flower sale just before Mother's Day. The children brought flowers from home and sold them to each other to take home for Mother's Day gifts. This brought in $17.50. A plant sale has been going on for the past week. Some plants sell at three for a cent. The class that is studying vulgar fractions is prepared to take on orders for one-twelfth of a dozen.

Sale of class pictures amounted to $31.85. These pictures were taken by camera-minded Junior Red Cross members and sold to their class-mates.

Penny donations amounted to $25.64 and profit on salvage was $49.72. In addition the children made bird houses and sold them. Hot-dog sales were found to be a profitable business, during this two-month period; $28.10 was the amount received from this line of endeavor.

All Saints' Sunday School Pupils Have Successful Picnic

Perfect Weather Made Bathing Popular at Long Lake Beach

One hundred and thirty-four members of the Primary department, main Sunday School and Bible Class of All Saints' Church enjoyed their annual picnic on Saturday. Held at Long Lake beach, it was complemented by perfect June weather. Hence, bathing was one of the major activities of the afternoon, which also featured sports and races.

The Junior Parochial Guild convened the refreshments which were served the children, who sat in a circle on the grass. In addition, each pupil had a ticket, which entitled him or her to ice cream. Several parents and teachers, as well as the rector, Rev. Canon H. C. B. Gibson, and Rev. J. Dalton, attended. Through the courtesy of parents and friends, transportation was arranged privately for all those attending.

No Holidays for City Red Cross

Contrary to their usual custom, Red Cross workers in this city will take no holidays this summer. The rooms will be open, as usual, on Tuesdays and Saturdays from one to five o'clock.

There is a quantity of sewing and knitting ready for willing hands, and the ladies in charge are asking that workers take supplies home. Materials have been received for both Greek War Relief, Red Cross Hospital sewing, as well as wool for a variety of knitting.

S. B. Swift, Miss R. Walmsley Nuptials

FAIRLAND, B.C., June 28.—On Thursday, Dominion Day, at the United Church of Canada, the marriage of Samuel B. Swift and Miss Ruth Walmsley, both of Fairland, will take place at eight p.m. Rev. Dr. J. H. Davies officiating. Mr. and Mrs. Swift will reside in the home recently purchased from Mrs. J. M. Oleg. The groom has for several years been the popular mail-carrier on R.R. No. 1, Armstrong. The bride-elect came, with her parents some years ago from the prairies to take up farming near Glenora.

Miss Ruth Walmsley was, on Tuesday evening this week, guest of honor at a miscellaneous shyster at the home of Mrs. A. M. Goto. Friends of Miss Walmsley and her fiancé have been invited to a wedding dance on Saturday evening next at the Fairland Community Hall.

For the Bride-elect

Entertaining for Miss Joan Shute, a July bride-elect, Mrs. Stan Botschen and Mrs. J. Vooghuys were co-hostesses on Thursday evening at the home of the former. The affair took the form of a "surprise" miscellaneous shower, attended by 16 friends.

Using the drop-lace as a background, a large box, decorated in pink and white, contained the gifts. This served as the central motif of a similar color scheme, utilizing streamers in pink and white, also an enormous white bow, against a bank of pale pink and white peonies.

Games and contests were played during the evening. Miss Violet Johnson and Mrs. Leslie Lewis being prize-winners. The supper table was covered with a bowl of multi-colored roses. Pouring wine, Mrs. Johnson and her sister, Miss Edna Botschen.

LUMBY, B.C., June 28.—A few friends gathered at the home of Mrs. W. Skormer last Tuesday evening to honor Miss Joan Marchwick at a linen shower. The gifts were hidden under a large French doll placed on a card table brought in while the guest was blindfolded. The evening was spent in games and contests. Dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. M. Kerney, Miss Helen Skormer and Miss Pearl Ward.

Full Coupon Value For the Housewife

The Wartime Prices and Trade Board point out that, if a housewife is buying less than a full coupon's worth of any meat, she may make the rest of the coupon value in meat from the same or any other coupon group.

To quote an example: If she wants half a pound of hamburger (worth half a coupon in Group C), she may buy, at the same time, a quarter-pound of any Group A meat, or six ounces of any Group B meat, or one-half pound of any Group C meat, or ten ounces of any Group D meat—giving one coupon to cover both purchases.

Two of the five are to be married. Miss Betty Ballie has been invited to V.A.D. work; Miss M. McMurphy goes to Portland for a Bible School course, preparing herself for missionary work; and Miss Verna Gillespie has left for Seattle, where she will take a course at the University of Washington.

SAFEWAY Homemakers' Guide

Summertime table topics featuring salads and desserts

Appetites are likely to lag a bit during the summer months if the homemaker doesn't employ a bit of strategy by serving cooling foods. There's a better way to lower the temperature at the table than to serve crisp, fresh salads, and refreshing desserts. Such offerings do wonders in stepping up tired appetites.

CARROT SUNDRIE SALAD—Blend together equal portions of ground raw carrots and creamy cottage cheese. Mix in sliced strawberries or whole raspberries. A few go a long way. Mold on shredded salad greens and top with your favorite dressing. It awakens the latest appetites.

TOMATO CUPS—Slice off stem ends and scoop out pulp of medium-sized tomatoes. Mix pulp with ground cottage cheese, add a few drops of lemon juice if desired and salt and pepper to taste. Refill cups, chill and serve as an accompaniment to the main course. It's a peppy salad that perks up commonplace meals.

CANTALOUPE-WALDOES SALAD—Chill cantaloupes or other melons, cut in halves or quarters and remove seeds. Refill with a mixture of chopped apples, raisins and nuts blended with salad dressing of your choice. If served at the end of the meal, this delicious salad takes the place of dessert.

SPINACH SALAD—Cut washed spinach into shreds, add ½ teaspoon grated onion and toss with tart salad dressing. Garnish with fresh tomato wedges.

EGGARS CRISPS PUDDING—Combine equal parts of sweetened rhubarb sauce and stale bread, cake or cookie crumbs. Turn into sherbet dishes and chill until crumbs absorb the juice from the rhubarb. When ready to serve, top with a fluff of beaten egg white sweetened with honey. It is delightfully refreshing.

MIXED FRUIT WITH CUSTARD SAUCE—Mix fresh berries, sliced peaches, plums or any other fruits in season. Arrange in sherbet glasses and cover with custard sauce. Chill and serve.

Wood Subsidy Extended Dec. 31

OTTAWA, Ont., June 28.—To aid in preventing a possible firewood famine next winter, the period during which the Government will subsidize cordwood production has been extended to December 31, it is announced by Munitions Minister Howe.

"I should like to remind farmers and farm workers, entitled to post-ponement of military training and living in areas where they can spare time from their normal agricultural pursuits, that their post-ponement will not be affected by engaging temporarily in cutting firewood," said Mr. Howe. "I might point out, however, that such temporary absence from the farm must not interfere with agricultural production."

When the Department's plan for meeting the emergency was announced on March 4, the decision at that time was to pay the $1.00 per cord subsidy to dealers only on commercial cordwood contracted for and cut on or before June 30, 1943, and delivered to a dealer or held to his account after March 5, 1943. Under the extension, the subsidy will be paid on the same basis for cordwood cut on or before December 31, 1943.

According to Mr. Howe, the shortage has been aggravated by the severity of the past winter and the lateness of the spring thaw. "Unless firewood is cut during the summer and early fall, the situation many parts of Canada may be critical," he said. "For this reason, the subsidy will be extended for six months."
